SOURCE [REDACTED]

1. On 26 June 1952, the engine noise of a jet fighter was heard for the first time over Peenemuende airfield. On the following days, jet fighters were repeatedly observed. (1) Grass was being mowed at the field.
2. The soldiers of the artillery unit at the field had the letters Bf on their epaulets and not Pf as formerly reported. The letters were not observed on the epaulets of the unit commander who was a major. [REDACTED] was assigned to the artillery unit. According to [REDACTED] eight guns arrived at the field by rail. Ration supply truck [REDACTED] was assigned to the AAA unit. (2)
3. Engineers and technicians wore silver-gray epaulets. The E1 and officers wore no chevrons on their sleeves. The members of the supply unit wore red-bordered epaulets and red ribbons around their caps. They wore decorations only on holidays.
